From the President

TSFA President Tom Wolfe, Sr.

It's hard for me to believe that twelve months have passed and this is my final message as President of Texas State Florist Association. It has not only been a tremendous honor, but an opportunity and experience I will never forget. The people and organizations I have been able to work with are simply the very best of the very best. Over the past three years TSFA has allowed me to travel to Washington D.C., Chicago, Iowa, Palm Springs, Austin, Lubbock, El Paso, Houston, Dallas and Austin just to name a few. Each trip was a tremendous opportunity for me. The florist I met and the networking always made each trip a unique learning experience. I was able to work with and learn from some of the greatest floral talent in the country.

This year we had a Forum, three Showcases and our largest event, the Expo. I want to give a special thanks to our Floral Events Coordinator Lynn Lary McLean, AIFD for putting all of these events together. Lynn had a lot of help from too many people to list, but all of them are past, current and future leaders of TSFA and the floral industry in Texas. It has been a sincere pleasure to work with everyone.

Our Texas Floral Education Underwriters are the one's responsible for financing the vast majority of our events. We greatly appreciate their support and product contributions. Please be sure to recognize and thank their representatives when you see them.

I would like to thank the Board of Directors along with all of the committees and their volunteers for all your help this year. TSFA is a volunteer organization, owned and operated by volunteers. I encourage everyone to become involved. Take the opportunity to work with and learn from these talented florist.

I would also like to thanks my personal friend, mentor, and Executive Director Dianna Nordman. It has been a true honor to once again work with her, Carole Sayegh and Taressa Dominguez for the past two years. TSFA is very fortunate to have such a fine executive staff. I also want to give special thanks to Debbie Wright for bringing my involvement back to TSFA.

I know I have left someone and some things out, but I want each of you to know how much everyone has meant to me these past few years. I am looking forward to being on the board for one more year and working with President Gina Waters, First Vice President Cheryl Vaughn along with an excellent board. Please become involved with TSFA and be a part of this wonderful experience.

2019 Petal it Forward

By Jenny Scala

Imagine the streets of your city filled with smiling people holding bouquets. Picture your social media feeds brimming with messages of thanks to your shop, for making a person's day brighter with flowers. Envision a local reporter calling, asking you why floral gifts make such a profound, positive difference in people's lives.

These scenarios and others like them have played out for hundreds of floral industry members who have participated in Petal It Forward.

SAF's 2019 Petal It Forward campaign date is set for Wednesday, Oct. 23, 2019, and the Society of American Florists is spreading the word to increase industry participation and make it easy for members to start planning their local events now.

"The Petal It Forward concept is simple and easy to do, and it is one of the most engaging floral promotions in the industry's history," said SAF Vice President of Marketing Jennifer Sparks. "The ROI is huge for industry participants, as the program's random-acts-of-kindness premise raises visibility with the local news, social media and consumers."

READY TO GET STARTED? HERE ARE SOME TOP TIPS FROM SAF

Lay the Groundwork

- >> Talk to your staff and decide if you would like to hold a Petal It Forward event in your community. Many participants say Petal It Forward provided a morale boost internally for their staff.
- >>> Start small and grow from there. Even handing out 20 to 50 bouquets or single stems can make a big impact.
- >> Think of Petal It Forward as advertising. That way, any expenses associated with the effort are worth it.
- >> Retailers: Talk to your supplier(s) to see if they would be willing to work with you on product, through a discount or donations.
- >> Wholesalers and growers: Talk to your retail customers about how you would like to help them in their Petal It Forward efforts, and/or consider holding an event of your own in your community.
- >> Tell SAF about your plans. Fill out the online participation form at org/piform. This will help SAF compile a list of Petal It Forward events to show the media you are part of an effort happening all over the country.

Scout Your Location

- >> Choose a busy pedestrian area, such as a bus or train stop, office or community park, in front of your shop or anywhere you'd like to hand out flowers.
- >> Consider venues where your gifts might be particularly appreciated, such as schools, senior centers and hospitals.
- >> Check with your city and the location to inquire if permission is needed to hand out flowers.

Get Help from Your Friends

- >> Invite staff, regular customers or family members to participate as volunteers; they'll help promote the effort through their own connections.
- >> Ask area nonprofits and civic groups in advance if they'd like to participate in handing out flowers.

SAF provides members with step-by-step instructions, planning timelines, success stories from other florists, media talking points, suggested social media posts, T-shirt and flower card templates, media advisory, sample press releases and more at safnow.org/pif.

FROM THE TEXAS OIL FIELDS TO Fields of Flowers ACE BERRY ACHIEVES STATEWIDE RECOGNITION

Richard "Ace" Berry was only 19 when he was bitten by the flower bug. Starting as a delivery driver for McAdams Floral in Victoria, Ace did not last long in that position. The seeds of floral design had been planted and quite soon he advanced to helping around the shop in all ways possible. "At 19, you think you have the world figured out. That could not be further from the truth as I soon learned." shared Ace.

Having many odd jobs before really starting his career in the floral industry he experienced life! Among the several included serving as a juvenile correction officer, a manager of a sports store, and five years in the oil fields. "Working in the oil field taught me a lot. This life experience taught me hard work. It also taught me that just because you work hard does not mean things will always go your way." In February of 2007, Ace was laid off from the oil field. That's when Ace decided to make a career change and return to the floral industry. "People always look at me and say from oil field to flowers, that's a big change. It was a big change, but it has been the best change...and I would not change my career path again for the world. I am where I plan to stay!"

In 2009 Ace received his first scholarship from the Texas Floral Endowment which led to achieving his Texas Master Florist Certification from Texas State Florists' Association. "TSFA has provided support, always being there to assist in all ways possible, with the progression of my career. Because of THE fundamentals that TSFA has instilled in me, I have already achieved many of my goals. The foundation of education, provided through TSFA, led me to successfully accomplish AIFD and PFCI accreditations as well as placing first place in the Texas Designer of the Year Competition."

Since being named 2019 Texas Floral Designer of the Year several doors have opened. The Fulshear Chamber of Commerce has promoted this success to include recognition on the floor of the _____ at The Texas State Capitol meeting congressman Pete Olson. Interviewed by numerous magazines, as well as an interview on KPRC, an NBC-affiliated television station licensed to Houston, Texas, has led the way to expand the promotion of Ace's business. "These opportunities simply would not have come my way without TSFA's successful placement of the competition at the Capitol. The association has provided me, as it does others, the opportunity to share just what we can do and I will forever be grateful!"

So, what's next?!! Ace will represent TSFA at the SAF Convention and compete in the Sylvia Cup with perhaps participation in another or two competitions along the way! With the opportunities to promote his business, since his win as Texas Designer of the Year, Fulshear Floral Designs, is certain to be top priority!

The members of TSFA join Ace in celebrating his success and look to the future with great anticipation!

Summer is a great time to do fourth quarter planning and create a strategy around the busiest time of year. A content calendar is a helpful tool to help keep your social media marketing process organized and strategic. If you aren't already using a content calendar, this article will discuss a few benefits as well as items that should be included on every content calendar to make it the most efficient and beneficial.

A good marketing plan includes strategy and a good strategy includes content. A content calendar keeps you focused and keeps your content in line with your overall strategy. The information included helps ensure content topics are not only in line with your plans, but they speak to your target audience and address the needs of your audience. Building your strategy in advance ensures you cover all major topics by following what has been set in your calendar.

Another major benefit of using a content calendar is it keeps you on schedule. During the busiest time of year, it would be easy to let your social media content slip through the cracks. A content calendar establishes the expectation and can help keep you and your team focused and publishing content consistently.

A final benefit to consider is a content calendar allows you to plan ahead. Fall and Christmas holidays are sure to keep you busy and using a content calendar is one way to get ahead by shaping content in advance of the actual dates it needs to publish. If you already have dates on your calendar, you can knock out the entire vision and layout of your content for an extended period of time, which gets you ahead and relieves stress in an already stressful season.

As you organize the elements of each subject on your content calendar, include a "call to action" and consider what kind of image or video is best-suited for the post. It's also a good idea to flag any posts with a code (or maybe highlighting in red) any posts that still have missing items (like image or video). By doing so, as you are in the season, you will always know which items still need the planned image and you can keep this top of mind as you are moving through the holidays, remembering to include those beautiful and engaging images. Lastly, you can find social media content calendar templates online in many different formats. Take a look and find one that fits your needs and happy planning!

ACCENT DECOR PROUDLY UNVEILS LADY AND GENTS BUDVASES

Accent Decor has proudly released The Lady and Gents Budvase exclusively designed by Accent Decor Co-Founder & Director of Philanthropy, Margaret Hofland. 10% of proceeds from these budvases will go to the Multiple Sclerosis (MS) Society to help fund a cure for a disease Margaret has been fighting for 29 years.

Despite Margaret's diagnosis, she has yet to relinquish her artistic talents. Over the years, she has put her talents into motion as a children's book illustrator and has designed countless Accent Decor catalogs, web features, showrooms and more.

"During the Product Development process, we felt the budvases needed an infusion of charm and a unique design differentiator," explained Sarah Bagle, Creative Director, and Margaret's daughter. "My Mother is a talented artist, and has used art to not only express herself, but as a form of therapy. When I presented the budvases to her, she was immediately inspired, and hand-drew these playful faces that we immediately fell in love with. We're delighted to see her personal touch integrated into our products. The budvases have been a hit with our customers."

MS is a chronic, often disabling disease that attacks the central nervous system (CNS), which is made up of the brain, spinal cord, and optic nerves. Symptoms may be mild, such as numbness in the limbs, or severe, such as paralysis or loss of vision. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of MS are unpredictable and vary from one person to another. Together, Accent Decor believes we can become a powerful force for health and healing. And with every dollar we raise, we're that much closer to ending MS forever.

The Lady and Gents budvases are available in a variety of sizes at accentdecor.com.

Born in Connecticut Kim O'Brien Jones grew up in New Jersey before moving to Texas in 1978. Her career in the floral industry started in a greenhouse while also creating dried flower arrangements to pay for college tuition. A professional floral designer for over 48 years she has received numerous certifications to include Texas Master Florist Advanced Certificate in 2005 and induction into the American Institute of Floral Designers in 2015. Her participation in TSFA includes designing bouquets for David Tutera's Your Wedding Experience and assisting numerous nationally recognized designers during Texas events.

Her workplace since 2010, The Blooming Idea in The Woodlands, is considered by many one of the most creative floral shops in Texas and she is most thankful to call it home.

Recently named Texas Master Gardener is evidence of her continued education always striving to achieve and be the absolute best in her field. Her most recent accomplishment is to receive the accreditation from AIFD as an AIFD Certified Judge-Evaluator.

Kim has two sons. Her oldest, Rocky, is a Captain for the Spring Fire Department and the younger, Paul, is a social studies teacher with the Cy-Fair school district.

When Kim is not designing or researching new floral techniques she is gardening (now as a Texas Master Gardener) or walking her collie Piper. Congratulation Kim on an award most deserved!

The Allied Florists' of Houston event at Southern Floral Company provided an opportunity for recent 2019 James E. Taylor High School Graduate Elizabeth Griffy to assist designer Fabian Salcedo and share her thoughts when interviewed by TSFA member Susan Piland TMFA. Elizabeth Griffy was a student of FFA Teacher Mrs. Burke. James E. Taylor High School is part of the Katy Independent School District. It certainly looks like our floral industry will be in good hands with fantastic young leaders like Elizabeth Griffy!

What made you choose floral design as a class in High School?
Sounded interesting! I joined FFA my junior year.

Do you have a favorite flower?
I'm in love with poppies.

How has achieving your Level 1 and Level 2 Floral Design High School Certification assisted with your future?

The certifications have created a standard for me to follow. It gave me the confidence this past March to compete in the Houston FFA livestock and rodeo Texas Table Design category, where I received Grand Champion!

Tell us about your experience assisting gifted floral artist Fabian Salcedo.

I am most impressed with how he combines floral materials that you would not have thought of. His work is so original and unique.

What are your plans for the future?

I plan on majoring in Accounting and minoring in Horticulture. I would love to own a floral business and have the financial knowledge to be successful.

THE BUSINESS OF Flowers

Expenses and Bookkeeping

Jodi McShan AAFTMF

It's summer and convention time for not only Texas State Florists' Association but for many others as well. As you know, this comes with a number of expenses from registration to travel and meals. You go, enjoy, network, and then come home with amazing ideas and inspiration and... a bunch of receipts...

You MUST keep your receipts for tax purposes; in case of an audit, you will need to be able to show what was spent and why. When it comes to money, we are all concerned about how to apply it and how to get reimbursed (if you can). Yes, I said if you can...

So what is reimbursable to you? If the company is paying you back, then you can turn in your receipts to whomever does your accounting and get reimbursed for your out-of-pocket expenses (often called an accountable plan). These are generally not reported as income or wages; however, if you are a 1099 worker that does not provide receipts to the company, then it does show up on your 1099 as income to you. It depends on the company as to what and how much they are willing to reimburse, especially if the expenses are from a voluntary trip.

As you may have discovered while doing taxes this year, if you claimed unreimbursed expenses on your Schedule A deductions, miscellaneous itemized deductions are no longer an option. The only individuals allowed to claim unreimbursed employee expenses are: armed forces reservists, qualified performing artists, fee-basis state or local government officials, or employees with impairment-related work expenses. These individuals can deduct expenses as adjustments to gross income, but they even have to watch the narrow categories. Have no fear! If you are self-employed (meaning no business entity), then you can deduct these expenses (however, please see previous articles as to why you should not fall into this category!). Additionally, businesses can still deduct these expenses albeit this deduction may be limited, making an easy way for you to have these expenses covered. Many companies limit the reimbursements to a per diem amount and/or limit what is reimbursed with many not paying for alcohol. Please note that these expenses must be deemed reasonable and appropriate. The IRS in Publication 535 stated "To be deductible, a business expense must be both ordinary and necessary. An ordinary expense is one that is common and accepted in your industry. A necessary expense is one that is helpful and appropriate for your trade or business. An expense does not have to be indispensable to be considered necessary."

If the business is reimbursing you, you must: show that the expense occurred in the performance of your job as an employee, provide receipts, and return any overpayments by the company. Keep in mind the business can only deduct 50% of the costs of meals, but the employee will be reimbursed 100% of the cost. Travel is reimbursed at cost; however, many employers may want to consider paying the standard mileage rate, which is calculated annually by the IRS. The 2019 mileage rate for reimbursement is $0.58 per mile (covering the cost of wear and tear on the employee's vehicle as well as gas and maintenance).

So before you head out to the bar and grab that drink with friends, remember that the expenses may not be reimbursed by your company and may not be deductible on your taxes! Go have fun, but keep your receipts and turn them into your company or accountant and make sure you are making notes of the purpose of the expense (networking with your customer or supplier, meeting for sales projections, convention for training, etc.). While we all know convention was fun, we cannot forget the fun of keeping track of the business side of things!

Please note: nothing in this article is intended to serve as legal or accounting advice. Please consult your attorney and/or accountant to decide what is best for you and your company.
